

Religious Awards - Adult

This knot may be worn by any Scout or Scouter that completed a religious emblem program. The actual administration of religious emblem programs is conducted by the Scout's religious organization. The religious organization usually presents the religious emblem upon completion of the religious emblem program. Units frequently honor the recipient with a presentation of the Universal Religious Emblem Square Knot. Only one youth award square knot is worn, no matter how many times the holder earns a second or subsequent religious award as a youth member.

Most of the adult religious awards are awarded for service to the youth of the particular faith or denomination. There are generally no specific requirements. For more information, contact your council Relationships Committee or the address for that faith as listed in the table in the Youth Religious Awards document.
